

The Overview of Pharmacy Education Reform in 2006

Tatsuo Kurokawa

(Councilor for Pharmaceutical Affairs, Ministry of Health, Labor and Welfare)

April 1 of this year will become a historical day to all pharmacists in Japan. Pharmacy education in universities is expanded to six years so that particularly education and training of clinical practice is to be strengthened. It is certainly expected that pharmacists graduated from Six-years education build a reliable relationship with the nations, and provide safe for the nations by the appropriate use of medicines. In these regards, it should be underscored that all persons concerned sincerely cooperate and understand each other for the attainment of effective implementation of the renewal pharmacy education.