

S34-1 The problem of food safety in Japan for the gyoza dumpling contaminated with organophosphorus pesticides

○Isao SAITO¹

¹Food Safety & Quality Reserch Center, Tokai COOP Federation, Japan

January 30, 2008, poisonings from tainted Chinese gyoza dumpling were reported nationwide to rise to 10 persons of 3 families. Many people felt fragile Japan's Food Safety and Security for imported foods.

The first incident was happened at Chiba on December 28, second at Hyogo on January 5, and third at Chiba on January 22. However, we were not able to think the relation between them. Now we have a big responsibility and try to improve our system responding quickly for these incidents.